

WELCOME TO FAIRFAX CA

Fairfax Chamber of Commerce
David@FairfaxChamberCA.com

The Town of Fairfax is an environmentally conscious community situated in the heart of central Marin County. Incorporated in 1921, Fairfax has a population of approximately 7,500. Its history spans thousands of years.

The Coast Miwoks are the indigenous residents of the area. Their rich history in areas throughout Marin and inhabited them for thousands of years before explorers and settlers arrived. Several local organizations preserve this history, and work to ensure that the stories of the Coast Miwoks are preserved. Many artifacts have been found within the town borders.

The Graton Rancheria community is a federation of Coast Miwok and Southern Pomo groups recognized as a tribe by the U.S. Congress. The Miwok of west Marin County have, through the years, been referred to as Marshall Indians, Marin Miwok, Tomales, Tomales Bay, and Hookooeko. The Bodega Miwok (aka, Olamentko) traditionally lived in the area of Bodega Bay. The neighboring Southern Pomo Sebastopol group lived just north and east of the Miwok. The town of Sebastopol is located about one mile midway between the north boundary of Miwok territory and the southern edge of Southern Pomo territory.

According to The Coast Miwok Tribal Council, which is a separate entity from the Federated Tribes of Graton Rancheria, the Coast Miwok were the first humans to appreciate the beauty and bounty of Marin County. Their roots are deep. One of the largest and deepest shellmounds excavated by archeologists in Marin is 5,000 years old. Oral histories trace the lineage back at least 10,000 years, and their creation stories describe how their ancestors emerged from the land itself.

Incorporated in 1921

HELD WITHIN THE MOUNT TAMALPAIS WATERSHED

For millennia the Coast Miwok were careful stewards of the land; in return, the land took care of them. The bay, marshlands and streams provided an abundance of fish and shellfish. Herds of deer, elk and antelope roamed the hillsides, and rabbit and quail were readily available. The Coast Miwok carefully tended and nurtured the many stands of oak throughout Marin that provided a key staple of their diet: acorns. They knew the yearly cycles of the plants, and exactly when, where and how to gather the wide variety of native berries, bulbs and tubers the land offered so there would be another good harvest when they returned to that location the following year.

When California was under Mexican rule, land grants were made to honor military service. Much of Marin was granted during 1834-1846 including land conferred to Domingo Sais in 1839 for his military service to Mexico. This track of land, known as Canada de Herrera, covered much of what makes up today's Fairfax and about 1/2 of San Anselmo- a total of 6,658 acres. Domingo Sais gave the area now known as the Marin Town and Country Club to Marin's first physician, Alfred Taliaferro of Virginia, who subsequently passed the property along to fellow Virginian, Charles S. Fairfax. Fairfax moved here with his wife, Ada, in 1855.

Charles Snowden Fairfax, tenth Baron of Cameron, Scotland, whose ancestors had been granted the province of Virginia by the British Crown, was lured west by gold fever. His Marin estate, called "Bird's Nest Glen," was famed for its southern-style hospitality. Fairfax passed away in April 1869 in Baltimore Maryland.

After the death of Charles Fairfax, the property changed hands, eventually becoming the site of the renowned Pastori's Restaurant in the 1890's.

Madame Pastori, a former singer at La Scala in Milan, Italy, was visited in Fairfax by many great figures of the opera world. The restaurant building, which was built on a grander scale after a fire in 1911, still stands.

Convenient railroad service early in this century made Fairfax a favorite weekend and summer holiday spot with city dwellers. Fairfax Park, a famous picnic spot, hosted thousands over the weekends. The large Italian population, due in part to the construction of Alpine Dam in 1917, gave the town much of its flavor and helped add to Fairfax's colorful history.

Fairfax has a rich history of film-making (silent films), big bands at the Marin Town and County Club, in the 1960s and 1970s it attracted some of the best musical groups to its bar and club scene, which has continued to attract artists and performers throughout the years.

In this way, the tax revenues continue to be monitored to ensure they are used according to the purpose and intent of the measure.

The Fairfax Open Space Committee ("FOSC") is an advisory body to the Town Council with the charge to assess open space acquisition opportunities, raise funds and support within the community for such proposals. This Committee also serves as an advisory body in the consideration of long-term planning for the Town, and to review certain planning and development matters.

PARC also considers sponsorship of special one-time events that benefit the community as a whole.

In 1973, the Town of Fairfax approved Ordinance No. 387 to preserve the wide variety of local native trees and to protect the benefits they provide the citizens. Trees prevent topsoil erosion, reduce the risk of landslides, and contribute to fresher air by using up excess carbon dioxide and turning it into life supporting oxygen. Additionally, trees provide scenic beauty and aesthetic characteristics to the town. A Tree Permit is required for removal OR significant trimming of any tree, pursuant to Town Code Chapter 8.36 'Trees.'

LIFE IN FAIRFAX

Welcome to beautiful Fairfax located in the Mount Tamalpais watershed. Filled with a rich diversity of wildlife, magnificent trees, beautiful riparian creeks and stunning flora. The community cares deeply for the environment and takes the responsibility of living and preserving nature to heart.

Living between trees and open space results in one lane, winding roads. Residents and visitors should be aware of their surroundings as we share this space with wildlife, hikers, walkers, kids at play and bicyclists. These factors also make it important to prepare for natural disasters, such as floods, wildfires and earthquakes. Residents acting as stewards in maintaining the beauty, safety and integrity of the land is what keeps the magic alive.

This small 2.2 square mile town has maintained its charm through generations of forward-thinking conservation efforts and values as stated through regulations upheld by the Town of Fairfax. Understanding expectations and regulations can help you settle into your new home, set you on a safe path, save you time and money and open the doors to the secret, unique quality of Fairfax living.

Key issues to be aware of before you settle in:

- Riparian/Creek Conservation
- Living with Wildlife
- Noise Regulation
- Wildfire Guidance
- Tree Resources
- Road Rules

Riparian/Creek Conservation

Plant communities supporting woody vegetation found along rivers, creeks and streams provide riverbank protection, erosion control and improved water quality and aesthetic values.

These systems supply food, cover and water for a diversity of animals and serve as migration route stopping points. Every creek, lake and culvert is vital to sustaining the area. Embankment health is important for creek stability to withstand floods. When the San Anselmo Creek fills, tributaries and culverts flow rapidly. Riparian vegetation resists the flow of floodwaters, increases water filtration, recharges groundwater and protects property.

The following create serious damage to these delicate areas, are prohibited and generate steep fines:

- Removing, dumping, and pushing soil into the creeks and tributaries
- Removal of trees or severe pruning of the canopy without permits.

Wildlife

Fairfax is home to an abundance of wildlife from the common to the unique, which includes the threatened, keystone & endangered species. The wildland/urban interfaces (WUI) are essential to support a healthy wildlife population as each species is an integral part of the ecosystem and needs a large landscape to survive.

PROTECT THE WATERSHED

Ecology ~ Safety ~ Courtesy

Things to know:

- Nesting season for the endangered Northern Spotted Owl runs from February 1st to July 31st each year. This is a critical time and loud noises should be kept to a minimum. These non-migratory owls are slow breeders and tied to mature forests with large trees.
- Flocks of crows are noisy, boisterous and may soil your vehicles, patios and decks. It is illegal to harm them, or any wildlife. Observation of wildlife should be kept at a distance.
- Use of pesticides and rodenticides is forbidden. They kill wildlife and poison the food chain. There are many alternative solutions to mouse and rat issues.

Pets

Protect your pets (dogs, cats, chickens, etc.) and plants from becoming dinner for wildlife. Wildlife frequent yards, roads, and driveways and are beloved and protected neighbors. Consideration must be taken in pruning and removal of vegetation as many are sanctuaries that provide shelter and food for birds.

Noise Regulation

The quiet and calm of nature appeals to those in need of healing, meditation and rejuvenation. Consideration is appreciated by wildlife as well as neighbors. There are ordinances in place for noise disturbance but regardless, alert neighbors of upcoming projects with loud decibel levels or large truck deliveries to insure a more convivial relationship.

Leaf blowers, construction, mechanical noise, loud voices and music, especially at night, impacts nature and neighbors. Keep it to a minimum.

- Use electric/battery powered tools whenever possible. 8am-6pm M-F and 9am-4pm weekends & holidays

Wildfire Guidance

Living in a woodland environment comes with a higher level of wildfire hazards and threats. Fairfax residents take pride in being an active Firewise community. Neighborhoods actively work together on emergency communications, home hardening and evacuation strategies. It takes the whole community working together to safely prepare for disasters.

Tree Protection

Fairfax is a forest full of oaks, redwoods, bay laurels, madrones and more. As a natural resource it is strictly managed by the town's tree committee.

- Trees, even on one's own property, and large woody perennials may not be removed or suffer excessive pruning without a permit and is punishable with a $1,000 fine

Road Rules/Parking

Roads are shared by drivers, pedestrians, cyclists, pets and wildlife. Drive slower than the posted signage, (5-10 mph). Watch your odometer. Many accidents and deaths of pets and wildlife can be prevented by slowing down and expecting the unexpected on our curvy, narrow roads.
